

I'll keep this short and simple.

I dont want you in my business, so please stay out of it.

I don't want to read your email, and I don't want to listen to your phone calls. So please stay out of mine. It's not that I have anything to hide. I pay taxes, I go to work, I don't bother anyone, and no one bothers me because of it. It's a matter of principles which makes me mad on topics like this. If I give up this, what are you going to try to take next. Maybe I should automaticly forward my email and tape my phone calls and send them to you. Just in case there's some secret plot that you must know about. Somewhere along the line it must stop. Eventually we are going to turn into China, and you'll censor all our internet content and telling us what to read.

Stay out of the lives of the public, and everyone will be much happier. Thanks for listening.
